

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

My Dear Friends and Colleagues:

I am delighted to share the spring 2019 Issue of the JOURNAL OF SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT IN AFRICA (JSDA) with you, our readership, scholars, researchers, mid-management officials of Inter-governmental, and Non-governmental organizations around the world. The Spring issue contains articles that address policy and legal matters that interrogate investment concerns in Africa; urban waste management concerns on the continent from a case study standpoint that could serve as a solid example of what could be emulated across the continent; the reconfiguration of the global political economy and the future of Africa; transport and sustainable livelihood in Lagos-Badagry Peri-Urban Areas of Nigeria; the impact of logistics management on organizational performance in Namibia; the question of sustainability practices in manufacturing companies in Africa; how to address the entrepreneurial skill of Africa's young people and many more papers that interrogate several aspects of sustainable development.

It is the belief of the JSDA leadership team that the selection process of the papers for the Spring issue was in the vein that emphasizes the two the themes of the journal: SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT and SUSTAINABILITY of Africa's ecological, economic, socio-cultural and political systems. We are delighted to bring these exciting articles to our readership and all those who find the JSDA articles informative and instructive.

Please forward your comment to the Editor-in-Chief.

We appreciate your continued support.

Sincerely,

Valentine James, Ph.D. CES; CAQS
