I provided an ongoing and engaging perspective on the development of new programs and academic initiatives and opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration. I provided leadership with regard to internationalizing the curriculum and university-wide campus initiative to collaborate with foreign institutions on academic/scholarly work. I provided leadership in promoting and sustaining a conducive environment which enhanced excellence in teaching, research and community service. I also oversaw the work of an Associate Provost, and I worked closely with the Assistant Vice President of International Programs.

The hiring of qualified instructional faculty was my responsibility, and I contributed to the University's Strategic Plan.

I participated in the Middle States Self Study at Clarion University.

I led the effort for the Middle States Assessment Monitoring Report at Clarion University.

I led the effort on the Academic Strategic Plan 2012-2017.

February 2008-June 30, 2008

Dean of Graduate Studies

Full Professor with Tenure

Fayetteville State University; Fayetteville, North Carolina

As Dean of Graduate Studies my duties included reorganizing the Graduate Studies from a decentralized system to a centralized system. Reconstituting the Graduate Council, graduate coordinators and the functions of the Graduate Studies Office.

2004- January 2008

Dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Full Professor with Tenure.

Fayetteville State University; Fayetteville, North Carolina

I provided leadership with regard to teaching excellence, research and outreach programs. Energized faculty by putting into place a clear vision for moving the College and University forward as a comprehensive regional institution.

As Dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at Fayetteville State University, I provided administrative direction and leadership for the following departments: Government and History, English and Foreign Languages, Sociology, Social Work, Performing and Fine Arts, Aerospace Studies, Army ROTC and Special Programs; and I was leading the efforts in the following new programs: Master's in Public Administration, Master's in International Studies, Bachelor of Arts in Security Studies, Bachelor of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies and the establishment World Service Institute.

My duties included managing, evaluating, coordinating, interpreting and performing assignment in compliance with national, state, and educational local policies. I was also involved in the contractual obligations and the implementation of sound instructional principles and procedures. Working with the chairs of the department/units and other university administration, I established goals, objectives, and plans; I initiated and participated in several programs planning and I communicated college policies to faculty and staff.

I assisted faculty in the acquisition, development and utilization of instructional resources. I was involved in the evaluation and approval of catalog material and program information; the recommendation of employment, retention of faculty and staff in accordance with board policies and administrative regulations.

I was engaged in the development and implementation of effective faculty development plans. Manage the budget for the college, resolve and assist in the resolution of faculty, staff and student problems and initiate corrective actions as appropriate, represent the college at meetings, conferences and in relationships with other educational institutions and community organizations. I worked with other university administrators in the development and planning of programs. I was involved in the development of Action Plans, Academic Strategic Plans, and Master Plans for the University.

2000- Director of Ph.D. Program in Public Policy.
2004 Full Professor with Tenure of Public Policy.
Southern University; Baton Rouge, Louisiana

At Southern University and A & M College, I redesigned the Ph.D. curriculum to respond to the needs of the academic discipline of Public Policy with regard to the core courses and the electives.

I worked with key faculty members to revamp the concentrations so that students would understand the cutting edge issues in their respective concentrations. Substantially changed the environmental policy concentration in order to equip student with the necessary skills and competencies of environmental managers and environmental scholars. I initiated collaborative grant proposal writing to seek significant funding to support Ph.D. and masters students. Organized graduate seminars as part of the scholarly activities of the Nelson Mandela School (a) The Idea Bag Seminar Series and (b) Conversation with the Director.

As part of faculty development, I was involved with regular mentoring of newly hired faculty members (both tenure track and adjunct). Worked with the Dean of Graduate School to improve graduate education (as a graduate council member) and to enable Southern University to attain the Carnegie doctoral/research intension status. In order to improve the scholarly research activities of the Nelson Mandela School of Public Policy and Urban Affairs, I brought the Journal of Sustainable Development in Africa (JSDA) to the School. I still serve as the “editor-in-chief”.

Under my leadership as Director, acceptance into the Program became highly selective. Increased multidisciplinary/interdisciplinary approach to research and teaching within Southern University and with other universities in the U.S. As Co-Principal Investigator on an NSF-IGERT (Integrative Graduate Education and Research Training) grant to support Ph.D. students in Engineering-Social Science, I was involved in the curriculum development to meet the needs of this emerging meta-discipline. The effort was in the collaborative venture between Southern University and Michigan Technological University

2001- Department Chair (Interim), Masters of Public Administration (MPA)

2004 Southern University and A&M College; Baton Rouge, Louisiana

I managed the hiring and firing of faculty, enrollment doubled under my chairmanship. Curriculum was adjusted to fit with the strength of faculty. Grantsmanship by faculty was emphasized. Collaborated with other departments to have Africa focused courses become part of the curriculum. I worked with chairs of other departments and the Provost of the college to achieve the central mission of the college especially in the study abroad project.
